Used Lighter Gifts
Brings "Thank You"

Mrs. Minnie Hartley recently made another shipment of cigarette lighters to be made into gifts for veterans, and received in reply the following note:

Dear Friend: I received your very nice package of lighters today, and I also want to comment on the fact that they are all nice ones, in fact just like new. This type is easy to make into gifts for the boys. That makes them feel that these are nice enough for anyone to own. I know this is not your first shipment, and I hope you can favor me with more in the future. I shall start now to build for the Christmas distributions, and you may well know you've been a part of the season's greetings to our vets in hospitals. Thanks again. The Lighter Man, J. S. Hoyt, Springfield, Ohio.

Mrs. Hartley will be glad to accept donations of used lighters at any time, and they will be forwarded to Mr. Hoyt, for repair and donated to veterans in hospitals.

Numerous people of Tyler, Texas, are the subject of their anger. The reason is an unusual case to give the county 41 adjoining counties that they are Tyler doesn't like it. Taxpayer's Dollar. The commerce of the United States in part. Some of the Redevelopment Act provides a $394 million areas will be a percentage figure at the end of the circumstances, designate areas as they don't meet the hall endeavor to do several States, under that actual expenditure in as many States many different language certainly as an outright instruction addressed areas on need may be extreme taxpayer's Dollar, a "redemption" area. To so designate an permanent harm. The Washington Post for offense in the area without any cost and business leaders.

Unwanted Aid . . .

Numerous people and organizations in the community of Tyler, Texas, are mad—good and mad. And the object of their anger is the federal government. The reason is an unusual one. The federal government wants to give the county, which includes Tyler, along with 41 adjoining East Texas counties, money, on the grounds that they are depressed areas.

Tyler doesn't like this one bit, apparently. On the day the news was announced in Washington, a Tyler paper asked "Where can we file suit for slander?" It went on: "We are neither depressed nor distressed economically. The only thing that distresses us is the fact that our Federal Government would be so willing to tap the taxpayers of the Nation to give us help that we don't need . . . it is distressing, indeed, to realize once again in a direct way how little Washington understands true conditions in our own country."

This editor certainly seems to have a point. According to the record, Tyler is moving steadily ahead in the economic sphere. Bank deposits have gone up, and it has been leading all East Texas in retail business activity. Residential building permits have soared, and new major industry is coming in.

This being true, how could it be that Tyler — and many other localities throughout the country which are in a comparable condition — can be labelled distressed areas?

Taxpayer's Dollar, a publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, gives the answer, at least in part. Some months ago what is known as the Area Redevelopment Act went into effect, carrying an appropriation of $394 million.

The Act provides a rather complicated formula under which areas will be considered distressed when the Secretary of Labor finds that unemployment reaches a certain percentage figure over certain periods of time. But that isn't the end of it. It further provides that, under some circumstances, the Secretary of Commerce can designate areas as redevelopment areas even when they don't meet the formula. It also states that he "shall endeavor to distribute the projects widely among the several States, so far as is feasible and proper, in order that actual experience with this program may be had in as many States and in as many areas and under as many different circumstances as possible." This language certainly amounts to an encouragement, if not an outright instruction to the Secretary, to designate distressed areas on a wholesale basis, even though the need may be extremely questionable. According to Taxpayer's Dollar, such "economically distressed" or "redevelopment" areas are in 49 of the 50 states.

To so designate an area may actually do it deep and permanent harm. That point was made in the influential Washington Post, which said: ". . . there is ground for offense in the listing of any county as a depressed area without any consultation with its officials, civic and business leaders, or direct surveys of actual economic conditions there. It is by no means improbable, as Senator Tower (R-Texas) pointed out, that the official designation of a county as one in need of economic rehabilitation may frighten away the new industries that it needs." In that event, the area concerned could really become distressed — and entirely unnecessarily.

According to Senator Tower, spokesman for the agency administering the act have been somewhat sensitive about the use of the words "depressed" or "distressed." They prefer "redevelopment." But this semantic quibble hardly seems to affect the principle at stake.

At any rate, the forces that want some changes made in the present law are growing. The Phoenixville, Pa., Daily Republican made this observation: "The passage of this law points up the necessity of skepticism about new welfare legislation at a time when defense spending must be heavy."

To meet the present demands, and in anticipation of future needs, the Tri-County Telephone Company proposes to rebuild its entire telephone plant, construct a new building and install therein modern automatic telephone equipment, so that they may better serve the city of Grayling and surrounding territory.

At a simple but impressive service, Miss Betty Jane Welsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Welsh of this city, became the bride of Douglas B. Stirling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil D. Stirling, of Saginaw, at Michelson Memorial Church Saturday afternoon at five-thirty o'clock with the Rev. H. W. Kuhlman officiating. The bride, leaning on the arm of her father, proceeded toward the altar, was lovely in a white velvet gown made on princess lines with shirred elbow-length sleeves finished with fitted bodice and a modified train extending from the full skirt. A cap of gardenias, from which fell a floor-length veil, completed her costume. She carried a colonial bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and white beechery-santhemums. Miss Gail Welsh, sister of the bride was maid of honor. The groom was attended by his brother, James Stirling, and ushers included Thomas Welsh, Fred Welsh, Jr. and Robert, brothers of the bride. Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Stirling left that evening by motor, for Venice, Calif., where they will be at home after Nov. 10.

To celebrate Halloween, young people of the Danish-Lutheran Church entertained a number of friends at Danebod Hall Thursday evening. Guests were asked to come in costume and masked, and Misses Ingeborg and Mildred Hanson had the most clever make-ups. Benny Jorgenson, who was one of those in charge of arrangements, was clad as a tramp and he acted the role to a "W". The entire were in keeping with Halloween with corn stalks, witches, goblins and ghosts much in evidence. Lunch with pumpkin pie as one of the good things to eat was served in the basement, amid decorations of orange and black.

Wild geese are reported to have been seen flying north. Wonder if there is a Corrigan among them.

Billion Dollars Costs $13,900 Locally

(Special to the Avalanche)

New York -- What does an additional $1 billion in spending on the part of the Federal Government mean to the average Crawford County family? How much money does that sum take out of local pocketbooks?

On the basis of some figuring done by the Tax Foundation, a non-profit organization, the cost locally is $16,900 for each billion spent.

That is the estimated amount that must be met sooner or later by the county's 1,300 families. The Government may get this money through direct or indirect taxation, or by going into debt, which means reducing the value of the dollar, or by a combination of all three.

The statisticians at the Tax Foundation find that each billion dollars of increase in Federal spending represents $19 to the average Crawford County family. It ranges above and below that amount in individual communities, in relation to their income levels.

In other words, notes the report, a billion dollars of increase in Federal spending means that each family could have used to buy an electric toaster or five LP records.

A $2 billion increase would take the average family's income to the point where they might have to use to purchase clock radios or power tool sets.

The enormity of a billion dollars can hardly be grasped. To reduce it to understandable figures, an economist put it this way: If a firm went into business at the time Christ was born and proceeded to make $1,000 every day from that time on, it would not yet have lost a billion dollars. Another 778 years would be necessary.

The Administration has stated that it expects to spend $88 billion in the current fiscal year, a record peacetime amount.

In terms of the average family in Crawford County, based on the Tax Foundation's estimates, this is equivalent to $1,144.

For the entire population locally the bill comes to more than $1,467,000.

The biggest part of this $88 billion spending program is for national defense. Non-defense appropriations are running much higher also. More money has been earmarked for defense projects and civilian aid than ever before.

The Mercy Hospital Cafeteria was the scene of gaiety, mixed with a touch of sadness, as the Sisters of Mercy, and the employees gathered together on Tuesday afternoon, October 24th, to honor Mrs. Abbie Madill, R. N., who celebrated her 65th birthday, and also her retirement from nursing, on that day.

"Our Abbie" as she is so affectionately known to personnel and patients alike, has become almost a legend in the institution of nursing. Her keen Irish wit and ready sense of humor, her sympathetic understanding, and her gentleness, the willingness with which she gave unstintingly of her time and effort, above and beyond the call of duty, have made her a very special person in the eyes of her co-workers and patients. Many persons have known her generosity and kindness, as she came to sit with one who was lonely and ill, or care for those who were acutely ill, even when she was not "on duty" or perhaps had already put in a full day at her hospital duties. Time meant nothing to her, if someone needed her. She is indeed going to be missed, as she leaves her duties to become one of the "retired," although it is doubtful in the hearts of those who know her if she will ever truly retire completely from the work she loves so well.

The table for the guest of honor was covered with a white linen cloth, and its centerpiece was a beautiful centerpiece in sympathy of the old Mercy Hospital, where she put in so many years. This was fashioned by Miss Wanda Cardinal. Three large cakes, depicting the various phases of the occasion graced the table. One was a Kelly Green Irish Hat, with "Happy Birthday" inscribed across it. The second was topped by two figures, a man, and a woman, in rocking chairs, she with her knitting, and he holding her yarn, and a symbol of retirement. The third was covered with a profusion of miniature articles of hospital supplies, while at its side stood a nurse in full regalia, with a Mercy cap, loaded with the various articles to do a day's work, on her person.

Abbie was presented with a corsage of baby roses, and baby mums, from her co-workers, and a lovely gift from the Sisters, by Sister Mary Raphael, hospital administrator. The employees presented her with a "Book of Memories" consisting of snapshots and clippings of events and people related to her years at Mercy, and a transistor radio. Numerous cards and gifts also arrived from friends around the state of Michigan.

Mrs. Madill graduated as Abigail Moriarty, from Mercy Hospital in Bay City, on October 20, 1918, where she worked until her marriage to Charles Madill. They moved to Ferndale, Michigan, residing there for 22 years. In 1944 they moved to Frederic, where they still live. They have two sons and two daughters. In October of 1949, Mrs. Madill became a regular employee at Mercy Hospital, in Grayling, and has been with them until now.

Among those present to honor her were her husband and daughter, Mrs. Eileen Tobin, of Frederic. Friends and former co-workers were present from Roscommon and Gaylord, also, to offer their congratulations.

Pictured above is the completed dam constructed by members of the Grayling Sportsman's Club at the south end of Lake Margrethe within Camp Grayling. Note the opening at the center of the dam, this allows the spring water to escape into the lake at this time. About the last of March next spring, this opening will be closed off and the marsh will be flooded to the depth of about two feet. The Fisheries Division of the Conservation Department will then plant twenty adult pike in the impounded water. In six to eight weeks, the water will be let down to normal letting approximately 4,000 fingerling pike escape into the lake.

RADKA REPORTS AGAIN ON CON-CON

The Constitutional Convention
budget was passed. The legislature appropriated two million dollars for the convention and having set aside $72,765.03 for continen-tals, the budget earmarked the entire two million.

The people of the State of Michigan will have to pay the bill.
Considerable opposition to the Constitutional Convention came from people who recognized the expense that would be involved in the convention.

The budget is based on a seven month operation. The convention could complete its work in less than seven months and it could last more than seven months. It has been concluded that appropriations for Constitutional Convention purposes could exceed the two million figure.

I have noted a sincere intent on
the part of most delegates to accomplish the task of drafting a document which can be presented to the voters as soon as possible.
A resolution has been offered to set a deadline for the convention at December 31, 1961. This deadline is generally considered impossible but it is evidence of the general belief that an attempt
should be made to get the task
done.

Most delegates have many responsibilities other than those of Constitutional Convention delegates and they do not intend to unnecessarily prolong the fulfillment of their great responsibility of presenting a good Constitution
to the voters of the State of Michigan and to do it as soon as possible.

Many have been confused about
the schedule of the Convention.
The 144 delegates meet together
in regular sessions at 8:00 Monday evening and at 2:00 in the afternoon on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and the Friday session is at 10:00 in the morning. The general sessions have been generally brief, averaging an hour. The general sessions will lengthen and increase in importance when the committee commence submitting a volume of recommendations on proposals to the convention. The first recommendation was received at the October 23rd session.
Committee meetings are held between sessions and will increase in number and length. The average length of a committee meeting has been two hours.
